Berlin Reports on Battle in Poland.

RUSSIA STILL SILENT

Lack of News Causes Some Unfavorable Comment.

London, Nov. 28.—While Petrograd correspondents continue to declare the Russians have won a great victory over the Germans in Poland official confirmation of their statements still is lacking.

Although Russian headquarters say the advantage in the fighting lies with their troops Berlin declares that no decisive battle has been fought. Some of the German newspapers claim success for their armies.

The silence of Grand Duke Nicholas, Russian commander-in-chief in the east, as to the progress of the battle in Poland, is causing some unfavorable comment in Russia. Advice received from Petrograd say there is a feeling there that perhaps the claims of the newspapers of a Russian success have been exaggerated.

In the western war zone comparative quiet prevailed. No reports of heavy fighting have been recorded here in several days, although there have been intermittent artillery duels and at various places small infantry encounters.

Snow has interfered with the fighting in Serbia, where the Austrians are making a supreme effort to rid themselves of their difficulties.

In addition to a contingent of 21,000 men, who are already in England, it is announced that Australia has raised a second contingent of 19,000 men.

PLANS FOR FREE BOHEMIA

Movement Started in America to Create Federation.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—To free Bohemia from the dual monarchy is the object of a movement started by Bohemians in America, it was announced here.

Behind the movement is a group of prominent Bohemians living in America, who have been holding frequent meetings in Chicago to work out their plan.

When the diplomats of Europe meet at the close of the present war to redraw the map of that continent the Bohemians plan to select one of their number to appear before them and make his plea.

If the allies are victorious the representative will ask the creation of a free confederation embracing the Czechs, Moravians, Silesians and Slovaks.

CAPTURE MANY PRISONERS

Berlin Reports Russian Reverse Near Lodz, Poland.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—Military observers here express the opinion that the success of General Mackensen's army near Lodz, in Russian Poland, apart from the enormous number of Russian prisoners taken, has served to further improve the German-Austrian situation in the east.

The most important event of the fighting, army officers point out, was the destruction by the Germans of 100 cannon, which the Russians will be unable to replace without the greatest difficulty.

The continued calling forth of new and large reinforcements shows, it is said, that the Russians are aware of the seriousness of their situation.

Lloyds Say German Submarines Attacked Two Boats Off Havre.

David Starr Jordan Declares Starved People Will Demand Peace.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Famine will end the European war and the feeding of starving millions will take precedence over rearrangement of political lines, according to David Starr Jordan, peace advocate.

That which did not begin the strife will halt the strife. The voice of the people will stop the conflict. One year will bring signs indicative of these things."

Dr. Jordan declared absolute bankruptcy will face every one of the warring nations, excepting Great Britain.

RUSSIANS REPORT AUSTRIAN DEFEAT

Commander Claims Capture of 4,000 Prisoners.

Petrograd, Nov. 28.—The following statement has been received from the Russian commander-in-chief:

"On the Czenstochowa-Cracow front our successes are assuming a marked importance. Our troops, on Nov. 26, captured more than 4,000 prisoners. Our offensive was particularly fortunate on the lower Czerniow river, where a whole battalion of the Thirty-first Honved regiment surrendered.

"Our troops also stormed a powerfully fortified Austrian position on the left bank of the Raba, where some of our attacking units forded the river during the breaking up of the ice and attacked the enemy. The water was neck deep in the river.

"Trustworthy reports show the Austrians have mounted in the steeple of the cathedral in the center of Cracow wireless apparatus and machine guns for protection against attacking aeroplanes."

Churchill Asserts British Navy Retains Its Superiority.

London, Nov. 28.—Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech in the house of commons before its adjournment until Feb. 2, told the country that despite the loss of some of the older ships of the British navy there was no cause for nervousness, but every reason for complete confidence in the power of the navy to give effect to the wishes and purposes of the empire.

The first lord told of the danger to British ships from mines and submarines and of the possibility of armored and fast enemy liners escaping to the high seas to prey on the allies' shipping, which, he added, had been prevented thus far.

He closed his speech with the statement there was another danger, "that of an overseas invasion—an enterprise full of danger for those who might attempt it."

LEVEL OF PRICES IS LOWER

Government Report Attributes Decrease to Prospective Crops.

Washington, Nov. 28.—A decrease of about 7.1 per cent in the level of prices paid American producers for the principal crops during October is noted by the department of agriculture. Exclusive of cotton, the decline was 26.1 per cent. For the past six years the price level has decreased during October 4.3 per cent. The department attributes two causes for the unusual decline this year: First, to steady improvement in prospective yield during October; second, to the leveling downward resulting from a transition from a year of small production and high prices to a year of large production and lower prices, notably in case of corn and potatoes.

MAY INCREASE STATE MILITIA

General Staff and War College Working Out Details.

PLAN CALLS FOR 500,000 MEN

Indications Are That Any Steps Looking to the Better Protection of the Country Do Not Contemplate an Increase in the Regular Army, but Will Be Devoted to the Enlargement of the National Guard.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Militant members of congress, who have proclaimed their intention to advocate the strengthening of the armed forces of the United States, apparently have been proceeding on the theory that the government has overlooked the matter.

If that be the case it is more than probable that these gentlemen, who are wasting midnight electric lights and the ribbons on their typewriters preparing resolutions providing for an increase in the army and navy, are certain to be disillusioned.

There is good reason to justify the statement the officials of the government entrusted with the duty of protecting the country from foreign invasion, and to assume the offensive, if necessary, have under consideration plans that will obviate the necessity for legislative undertakings in this line other than to facilitate the consummation of those of the government.

Staff and War College Busy.

The general staff and war college have been at work for more than two months working out the details of a system that probably will be recommended by the secretary of war in his annual report and presumably with the sanction of the president.

From what can be learned, however, it is probable that any steps looking to the better protection of the country do not contemplate any increase in the regular army, but will be more directly devoted to the enlargement of the militia forces of the states.

The nearest basis for this reorganization reached by the experts contemplates the creation of a volunteer reservist force to bring the forty-eight state militia forces to 500,000 men, who can be made ready for active military duty within three weeks.

Strength of Regular Army.

The regular army at present consists of 4,572 officers and 88,444 enlisted men. The authorized full strength of the state militia forces aggregates 128,043 men. The reports, however, indicate that there are only 93,277 men actually available for duty in the state militia forces.

The conditions of the land defensive arm of the national forces in the United States is something approximating that of the British government at the beginning of the war now raging on the continent of Europe.

It is the purpose of the government to invite the co-operation of the states in an effort to encourage a greater degree of interest in the development and efficiency of this branch of national defense.

One of the details of the new plan contemplates the establishment of a permanent training camp in each state during a period of from four to six months each year.

One Person Probably Fatally Hurt When Train Is Derailed.

Mexico, Mo., Nov. 28.—Thirty persons were injured, one of them probably fatally, when Burlington-Alton passenger train No. 22, eastbound from Kansas City to St. Louis, left the rails three miles east of Clark. Steve Preston, negro porter, injured internally, probably will die.

Some of the injured were rushed to nearby towns in motor cars, but the majority were brought to this city on a special train rushed to the scene from Moberly.

The cause of the accident has not been learned.

TAFT DISCUSSES INVASION OF CANADA

Says Germany Would Not Violate Monroe Doctrine.

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 28.—The Monroe doctrine was strongly endorsed, its relation to the present European war discussed and the declaration that interference by the United States in Mexico and in Central American states has had nothing to do with that doctrine was made by former President William Howard Taft in an address here. These are some of the salient features of his remarks:

"The landing of troops in Canada by enemies of Great Britain would not constitute a violation of the doctrine, but an effort to establish a new form of government in case of victory would."

The doctrine has not been applied in Mexico because there is nothing in it which requires the United States to bring about peace in that country. "Watchful waiting," Mr. Taft said, was the term applied to the United States' status, but, he went on, "we have neither watched nor waited, but have, in fact, mostly hastily intervened and thus find the present anarchy charged as the logical consequence of our policy."

VILLA'S FORCES IN MEXICO CITY

Washington Regards Unofficial Reports as Correct.

ORDER IS BEING MAINTAINED

Spanish Ambassador Receives Word From Madrid That Several Spaniards Were Killed on the Outskirts of Mexican Capital—General Carranza Has Arrived at Vera Cruz.

Washington, Nov. 28.—While no definite advices had been received as to the situation in Mexico City administration officials credited reports that General Villa's troops had joined the Zapata forces there.

The last dispatch to the state department reported the Zapata men and agents of General Villa as in control of the city. All official dispatches say order is being maintained in the capital.

On the outskirts of the city, the Spanish ambassador told Mr. Bryan, several Spaniards have been reported killed. The Spanish envoy's advices were from Madrid.

In view of the arrival of General Carranza at Vera Cruz, Secretary Bryan wired Mr. Silliman to remain in Mexico City. He ordered Mr. Silliman originally to join Carranza when the latter was at Orizaba.

Enrique C. Llorente, Washington representative of Provisional President Gutierrez, received advices confirming the report that General Luis Caballero at Tampico, governor of the state of Tamaulipas, had declared his adherence to the national convention.

VOTE TO RESCIND ACTION

Trustees Elect Agricultural College President.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 28.—After making President J. H. Worst of the North Dakota Agricultural college president emeritus and electing Professor E. F. Ladd, a member of the faculty and pure food commissioner of North Dakota, to succeed Worst, four of the seven members of the board of trustees at a later meeting voted to rescind the election.

This angered the remaining three, who have tendered their resignations to Governor Hanna. They have not been acted upon.

The election of Dr. Ladd was made two weeks ago, but for some reason the board kept the matter from the public. It was unanimous. The board called in Dr. Ladd, congratulated him and received his acceptance. Those who have resigned are Claude Nugent, Clark W. Kelley and George M. Hollister.

The majority membership of the board gave as its reason for rescinding the election of Dr. Ladd that new appointees soon would be placed on the board, and it would be better to have the new board elect a president satisfactory to it.

STABS HER LOVER TO DEATH

Woman Then Commits Suicide by Inhaling Gas.

St. Paul, Nov. 28.—A stab wound and not a bullet caused the death of Frank Hangel, bartender, whose body with that of the woman believed to have murdered him, was found in a gas filled room.

When the man's body was examined it was believed he had been shot, but an autopsy showed that death was caused by a knife, apparently a thin bladed dagger. The weapon has not been found by the police.

The woman, who committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas, was Mrs. Charles Mattson, said to be the divorced wife of Charles Mattson, a Minneapolis porter.

A series of jealous quarrels and hand to hand fights is said by the police to have been the prelude to the double tragedy.

PRISONERS ATTACK GUARDS

Coroner's Jury Justifies Shooting by British.

Douglas, Isle of Man, Nov. 28.—A coroner's jury decided that the shooting of several German prisoners of war during the riot in the Isle of Man detention camp last week was justified.

Colonel Madoc, camp commandant, testified he thought the riot was prearranged. The trouble occurred in the dining room and the commandant said a red hand made of cardboard was placed on the dining room table during dinner and that a chair was thrown through a window.

The guards warned the prisoners who advanced on them, throwing missiles. The soldiers were unable to use their bayonets and in the opinion of Colonel Madoc they were justified in firing.

MAY INCREASE
STATE MILITIA

General Staff and War College Working Out Details.

PLAN CALLS FOR 500,000 MEN

Indications Are That Any Steps Looking to the Better Protection of the Country Do Not Contemplate an Increase in the Regular Army, but Will Be Devoted to the Enlargement of the National Guard.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Militant members of congress, who have proclaimed their intention to advocate the strengthening of the armed forces of the United States, apparently have been proceeding on the theory that the government has overlooked the matter.

If that be the case it is more than probable that these gentlemen, who are wasting midnight electric lights and the ribbons on their typewriters preparing resolutions providing for an increase in the army and navy, are certain to be disillusioned.

There is good reason to justify the statement the officials of the government entrusted with the duty of protecting the country from foreign invasion, and to assume the offensive, if necessary, have under consideration plans that will obviate the necessity for legislative undertakings in this line other than to facilitate the consummation of those of the government.

Staff and War College Busy.

The general staff and war college have been at work for more than two months working out the details of a system that probably will be recommended by the secretary of war in his annual report and presumably with the sanction of the president.

From what can be learned, however, it is probable that any steps looking to the better protection of the country do not contemplate any increase in the regular army, but will be more directly devoted to the enlargement of the militia forces of the states.

The nearest basis for this reorganization reached by the experts contemplates the creation of a volunteer reservist force to bring the forty-eight state militia forces to 500,000 men who can be made ready for active military duty within three weeks.

Strength of Regular Army.

The regular army at present consists of 4,572 officers and 88,444 enlisted men. The authorized full strength of the state militia forces aggregates 128,043 men. The reports, however, indicate that there are only 93,277 men actually available for duty in the state militia forces.

The conditions of the land defensive arm of the national forces in the United States is something approximating that of the British government at the beginning of the war now raging on the continent of Europe.

It is the purpose of the government to invite the co-operation of the states in an effort to encourage a greater degree of interest in the development and efficiency of this branch of national defense.

One of the details of the new plan contemplates the establishment of a permanent training camp in each state during a period of from four to six months each year.

COLLEGE GIRL HURLS KISS

President Serenaded by Twenty-five Students.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 28.—Large crowds greeted President Wilson as he passed through North Adams, Greenfield, Northampton and this city on his way to Washington.

At Northampton twenty-five Smith college girls gathered outside the private car and serenaded the president with especially prepared songs as he ate dinner.

One of the prettiest of the girls threw a kiss at Mr. Wilson when he looked in her direction.

THIRTY INJURED IN WRECK

One Person Probably Fatally Hurt
When Train Is Derailed.

Mexico, Mo., Nov. 28.—Thirty persons were injured, one of them probably fatally, when Burlington-Alton passenger train No. 22, eastbound from Kansas City to St. Louis, left the rails three miles east of Clark. Steve Preston, negro porter, injured internally, probably will die.

Some of the injured were rushed to nearby towns in motor cars, but the majority were brought to this city on a special train rushed to the scene from Moberly.

The cause of the accident has not been learned.

TAFT DISCUSSES INVASION OF CANADASays Germany Would Not Violate Monroe Doctrine.

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 28.—The Monroe doctrine was strongly endorsed, its relation to the present European war discussed and the declaration that interference by the United States in Mexico and in Central American states has had nothing to do with that doctrine was made by Former President William Howard Taft in an address here. These are some of the salient features of his remarks:

"The landing of troops in Canada by enemies of Great Britain would not constitute a violation of the doctrine, but an effort to establish a new form of government in case of victory would."

The doctrine has not been applied in Mexico because there is nothing in it which requires the United States to bring about peace in that country. "Watchful waiting," Mr. Taft said, was the term applied to the United States' status, but, he went on, "we have neither watched nor waited, but have, in fact, mostly hastily intervened and thus find the present anarchy charged as the logical consequence of our policy."

Chile's First Ambassador Will Be Received Tuesday.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The Chilean minister, Eduardo Suarez-Mujica, who has been selected by his government to be its first ambassador to the United States, will present his credentials to President Wilson Tuesday.

Henry P. Fletcher, American ambassador to Chile, presented his credentials in Santiago several days ago.

ARKANSAS FIRES ARE HALTED

Showers Remove Last Danger From Forest Flames.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 28.—Continued showers assured the removal of the last of the danger from further ravages of forest fires in Arkansas. Rain is falling in many parts of the state.

Reports from points near the fire swept timber lands say the fires are out and no further fear is felt.

ORDER IS BEING MAINTAINED

Spanish Ambassador Receives Word From Madrid That Several Spaniards Were Killed on the Outskirts of Mexican Capital—General Carranza Has Arrived at Vera Cruz.

Washington, Nov. 28.—While no definite advices had been received as to the situation in Mexico City administration officials credited reports that General Villa's troops had joined the Zapata forces there.

The last dispatch to the state department reported the Zapata men and agents of General Villa as in control of the city. All official dispatches say order is being maintained in the capital.

On the outskirts of the city, the Spanish ambassador told Mr. Bryan, several Spaniards have been reported killed. The Spanish envoy's advices were from Madrid.

In view of the arrival of General Carranza at Vera Cruz, Secretary Bryan wired Mr. Silliman to remain in Mexico City. He ordered Mr. Silliman originally to join Carranza when the latter was at Orizaba.

Enrique C. Lorente, Washington representative of Provisional President Guiterrez, received advices confirming the report that General Luis Caballero at Tampico, governor of the state of Tamaulipas, had declared his adherence to the national convention.

VOTE TO RESCIND ACTION

Trustees Elect Agricultural College President.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 28.—After making President J. P. Worst of the North Dakota Agricultural college president emeritus and electing Professor E. F. Ladd, a member of the faculty and pure food commissioner of North Dakota, to succeed Worst, four of the seven members of the board of trustees at a later meeting voted to rescind the election.

This angered the remaining three, who have tendered their resignations to Governor Hanna. They have not been acted upon.

The election of Dr. Ladd was made two weeks ago, but for some reason the board kept the matter from the public. It was unanimous. The board called in Dr. Ladd, congratulated him and received his acceptance. Those who have resigned are Claude Nugent, Clark W. Kelley and George M. Hollister.

The majority membership of the board gave as its reason for rescinding the election of Dr. Ladd that new appointees soon would be placed on the board, and it would be better to have the new board elect a president satisfactory to it.

STABS HER LOVER TO DEATH

Woman Then Commits Suicide by Inhaling Gas.

St. Paul, Nov. 28.—A stab wound and not a bullet caused the death of Frank Hansel, bartender, whose body with that of the woman believed to have murdered him, was found in a gas filled room.

When the man's body was examined it was believed he had been shot, but an autopsy showed that death was caused by a knife, apparently a thin bladed dagger. The weapon has not been found by the police.

The woman, who committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas, was Mrs. Charles Mattson, said to be the divorced wife of Charles Mattson, a Minneapolis porter.

A series of jealous quarrels and hand to hand fights is said by the police to have been the prelude to this double tragedy.

PRISONERS ATTACK GUARDS

Coroner's Jury Justifies Shooting by British.

Douglas, Isle of Man, Nov. 28.—A coroner's jury decided that the shooting of several German prisoners of war during the riot in the Isle of Man detention camp last week was justified.

Colonel Madoc, camp commandant, testified he thought the riot was prearranged. The trouble occurred in the dining room and the commandant said a red hand made of cardboard was placed on the dining room table during dinner and that a chair was thrown through a window.

The guards warned the prisoners who advanced on them, throwing missiles. The soldiers were unable to use their bayonets and in the opinion of Colonel Madoc they were justified in firing.

RICH CHURCHGOERS.
Non-Churchgoing Is Not One of the
Sins of the Plutocrats.
Among the sins of the plutocrats
it seems that non-churchgoing cannot hold a place. This was discovered at least to the satisfaction of The Home Herald (Chicago) which was spurred on to an investigation by the pessimistic declaration of "a preacher of one of our large churches" that not fifty of this city's rich men could be found attending church. The Home
Herald took up the challenge and addressed a number of prominent clergymen. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in one of the last letters he ever wrote, asserted that he didn't know
many rich men, but "as it happens
all that I know, have been very regular attendants at church." Dr.
Parkhurst and Dr. MacArthur, of New York, supported in the main this assertion, the former writing:
"Almost all of those who, in this city, are phenomenally wealthy and whose names are widely known—
such as Rockefeller, the Vanderbilts,
the Goulds, the Morgans, and the Kennedys—and I might add the names of several representative families such as the Dodges, the James-es, the Jessups, the Hartleys, and the Stokeses—three of four of whom are recently deceased—who not only attend church but are contributors to the maintenance of the church."

They Were Not Indians.
It is said that when the first Chinese entered California the Indians were very curious about them. A dispute arose among some of them as to what country the strangers might hail from
and whether or not they were Indians.
The Indians decided to apply the water
test. One day a party of Indians met
a party of Chinamen approaching a little stream. The strangers approached the bridge and started across. The Indians, too, had filed across and, meeting the Chinamen in midstream, pushed two of them into the angry, spoom-ing current below. The test was conclusive. They could not swim. They were not Indians.
Crossed Knives and Forks.
The old custom of crossing the knife and fork after dining had its origin, if we may trust Mr. F. W. Burgess' explanation in his book, "Chats on Household Curios," in a spirit of devotion. He quotes Browning:
Knife and fork he never lays
Crosswise, to my recollection.
As I do in Jesu's praise.
"In Russia," says Mr. Burgess, "this custom of the peasantry was deep rooted, and there they were careful to take up the knife and fork and lay them down on the plate crossed before commencing their meager meal.
Strange to say that, although knives
and forks have been crossed in reverence, to cross knives has been deemed unlucky."

all means keep a bottle of Sloan's Lin-comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist

stant relief.—Adv. 111f

RICH CHURCHGOERS.

Non-Churchgoing Is Not One of the
Sins of the Plutocrats.

Among the sins of the plutocrats
it seems that non-churchgoing cannot hold a place. This was discovered at least to the satisfaction of The Home
Herald (Chicago) which was spurred on to an investigation by the pessimistic declaration of "a preacher of one of our large churches" that not fifty of this city's rich men could be found attending church. The Home
Herald took up the challenge and addressed a number of prominent clergymen. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in one of the last letters he ever
wrote, asserted that he didn't know
many rich men, but "as it happens
all that I know, have been very regular attendants at church." Dr.
Parkhurst and Dr. MacArthur, of
New York, supported in the main this
assertion, the former writing:
"Almost all of those who, in this city, are phenomenally wealthy and
whose names are widely known—
such as Rockefeller, the Vanderbilts,
the Goulds, the Morgans, and the Kennedys—and I might add the names of several representative families such as the Dodges, the James-es, the Jesups, the Hartleys, and the Stokeses—three of four of whom are recently deceased—who not only attend church but are contributors to
the maintenance of the church."

Reformed Spelling.

A commercial traveler tells us of an interesting notice exhibited in the window of a small shop in the west of England. It runs, "Ome Grone One 6

To upholders of the new orthography this should be interesting. It refers to home grown honey and its price.—Lon-

APPEAL IN BOYCOTT CASE

Hat Concern Asks Supreme Court to Affirm Damage Award.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Counsel for D. E. Loewe & Co., the Danbury (Conn.) hat concern, awarded $252,000 damages under the Sherman law against 182 members of the United Hatters' union for injuries from a boycott, asked the supreme court in printed briefs to affirm the judgment of the lower court.

They Were Not Indians.
It is said that when the first Chinese entered California the Indians were very curious about them. A dispute arose among some of them as to what country the strangers might hail from
and whether or not they were Indians.
The Indians decided to apply the water
test. One day a party of Indians met
a party of Chinamen approaching a little stream. The strangers approached the bridge and started across. The Indians, too, had fled across and, meeting the Chinamen in midstream, pushed two of them into the angry, spum-ing current below. The test was conclusive. They could not swim. They were not Indians.

Crossed Knives and Forks.
The old custom of crossing the knife
and fork after dining had its origin, if we may trust Mr. F. W. Burgess' explanation in his book, "Chats on Household Customs," in a spirit of devotion. He quotes Browning:

Knife and fork he never lays
Crosswise, to my recollection.
As I do in Jesus's praise.

"In Russia," says Mr. Burgess, "this custom of the peasantry was deep rooted, and there they were careful to take up the knife and fork and lay
them down on the plate crossed before
commencing their meager meal.
Strange to say that, although knives
and forks have been crossed in reverence, to cross knives has been deemed
unlucky."

Small Duties.

Don't object that your duties are so insignificant, that they are to be reckoned of infinite significance and alone important to you. Were it but the more perfect regulation of your apartments, the sorting away of your approaches, the sorting away of your clothes and trinkets, the arranging of your papers—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might and all thy worth and constancy." Much more of your duties are of evidently higher, wider scope. If you have brothers, sisters, a father, a mother, weigh earnestly what claim does lie upon you, one-half of each, and consider it as the one thing needful to pay them honestly and nobly what you owe.—Thomas Carlyle.

you would do in another man's place, but why don't you do the right thing in your own place?"

An offering will be taken at the Sunday services. Everybody is invited to attend all of the above services.

A short Sunday school session will be held in the basement of the church beginning promptly at 9:45. There will be no Young Peoples meeting in the evening.

Durham-Koering

Mr. Gregor Koering and Mrs. Lulu Durham were married November 24 at 9 o'clock in the morning at St. Francis Catholic church, Rev. Father J. J. O'Mahoney officiating.

The bride was gowned in light blue messaline with an overdress of beaded chiffon. The bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Koering, wore a pretty dress of light blue silk poplin trimmed with shadow lace. The best man was Mr. Frank Stangel.

After the ceremony a reception was given at her home in Ossipee by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Lougee. Only relatives and intimate friends were present at the ceremony in Brainerd.

Their many friends wish them prosperity and happiness.

MRS. HASKELL, READER

Mrs. Penetia Sargent Haskell will give a program at the Citizens State bank hall at 8 o'clock tonight, appearing under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Her readings from the last entertainment of a series of three of the C. W. Best Artists Series.

Of Mrs. Haskell the Austin Daily Herald says: "Mrs. Haskell is an artist whether judged by her exquisite gown, her charming personality, her infectious laugh, her flexible voice, her rare expression, or her power to win and hold her audience."

The New Hampton, Iowa, Gazette says: "As an artist Mrs. Haskell has departed from the old school of so-called elocutionists, and reads in a simple pleasing manner which delights all, both young and old."

BERGH PUPILS RECITAL

Rehearsals Going on for the Eighteen Piece Orchestra Which Will Play December 4th

The recital to be given by the pupils of Edwin Harris Bergh at the First Congregational church on Friday evening, Dec. 4, promises to be an event of unusual interest.

Rehearsals are going on for the eighteen piece orchestra which will include six first violins, four second violins, two third violins, cornet, cello, flute, drums, organ and piano.

There will be fifteen violin solos, some by children but seven years of age.

Miss Eliza Armstrong, talented soprano singer of Brainerd, will sing three songs, one French, one Italian and one English.

It is the first time a concert of this

Family Reunion

A very happy family reunion was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Eckholm on Thanksgiving day. A very sumptuous, turkey dinner was served by Mrs. Eckholm, whose achievements in the culinary line are of the highest order.

The afternoon was spent very pleasantly by all. Covers were laid for eleven. The table was beautifully decorated in yellow and white, yellow chrysanthemums formed the center piece. After supper the party voted hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Eckholm.

Persuasive Class

On Monday evening, November 30, the young ladies of the Persuasive class of the Methodist Episcopal Bible school will have a fancy work sale under the supervision of Miss Ada Kuntz in the new basement of their church.

Home made candies also will be sold and coffee and cake will be served for ten cents by the Class of Hope. Those in charge heartily invite all to attend. It will be an excellent opportunity for the friends of the church to see the basement improvements of the church and dainty Christmas gifts can be purchased most reasonably.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Columbia

The management claim that if every one only knew the many good points of "The Prison Stain" to be shown tonight only, a packed house would be on deck to see it. The Kalem company in making this picture have used nearly all of their star actors and actresses and thrown open their entire studio that the best results might be obtained. A splendid show is absolutely assured. As a special Sunday attraction "Bootle's Baby" will be the head-liner. According to the leading critics of the moving picture magazines this particular story is said to be the strongest two-reel feature the Edison company ever presented. A special musical program of entirely new music never before heard in Brainerd.

At the Grand

"Mysterious Mystery" tonight. The play opens with Florence Lawrence sitting with two kiddies on either side of her, with no one recognizing her, watching the play as it developed. However, as she entered the theatre she was observed by a strange man wearing an officers badge. He is shown as he phones for help.

A little later as the play progresses an auto arrives with another man. The stranger who first observed her approaches and informs her that friends wish to speak with her outside. She consents and as she approaches the auto a rug is thrown over her head. Miss Lawrence finds herself in an asylum. The excitement is clean and worthy of your admittance.

Also "A Girl and the Smuggler," a Victor drama; "A Modern Melodrama" for Sunday.

What would you do if a suitor for your hand, whom you did not love, introduced you to a foreign nobleman who finally proved to be an imposter, after you had married him? How would you feel if you had been inveigled into a plot of this kind and then discovered that you really loved the man? What would be your feelings if your former pseudo loved attempted to ruin your father in order to make the plot more dastardly?

Conduct Affairs of Eighteen Nations During the War.

BURDEN ON AMBASSADORS.

Every Official Has Large Share of Public Business at This Time, and Bryan Is Fortunate In Having a Trained Corps—Purchase of Alaska Was Very Good Business For Uncle Sam.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—One important reason why the United States should maintain strict neutrality is on account of its relations with many other nations now involved in war. The United States is transacting the business of eighteen different countries involved in one way or another in the present great world struggle. Our embassies and legations abroad are transacting business for the nations engaged in war.

Not only has this placed a heavy burden upon the men who represent the United States abroad and their assistants, but it has largely increased the work of the state department. Every official in the state department has more than his share of government business at the present time. It is fortunate that there is a corps of trained men in the state department who are able to transact so much of this business. Secretary Bryan is fortunate in having so many valuable assistants who are able to carry on this increased foreign business, even if the secretary is at times compelled to be absent.

An Annual Struggle.

Not only does the clash between the football teams of the military and naval academies mean an annual struggle for supremacy on the football field, but it is also an annual struggle for tickets. The pressure for tickets to the Army and Navy football game, which has become an official and social affair, is one of the interesting features of Washington life.

Secretary Garrison of the war department is at first amused but afterward becomes somewhat indignant when he gets dozens of letters from members of congress like this: "I understand I am entitled to a number of tickets for the Army and Navy football game. Please send them to me at once." As no one is entitled to football tickets unless he gets them himself, the secretary is powerless to grant these requests.

Would Be a Ten Strike.

In these days, when the army and navy are struggling for recognition by congress and seeking betterments all along the line, it would be a good idea if the two academies would see to it that every senator and representative receives a couple of football tickets to this annual game. It would not take more than a thousand tickets to furnish every congressman who desires to go with complimentary and it certainly would make them feel better. If they did not use them themselves they could turn them over to friends who would like to go.

Why, Clark, of Course.

It seems rather strange that there should be any discussion as to who will be the speaker of the Sixty-fourth congress. It is true that Speaker Clark has enemies and opponents in his own party and has found it necessary to speak in sarcastic terms publicly of some of the men who have antagonized him. But, even so, these men could not muster half a dozen votes against Clark. He will be speaker as long as he remains in the house and the house is Democratic.

Champ Clark would not be as popular as a speaker, however, if the speaker had retained all the power that was exercised in the days before the Republican insurgents and Democrats went on a wild rampage and took much power from the speaker. At the same time the speakership is a good office and quite desirable, and if Champ cannot be president the next thing that suits his ambition is the speakership.

Christmas Just the Same.

Postmaster General Burleson announces that his department is getting ready to handle a larger Christmas business than ever before, which shows that, notwithstanding the many things that have been going wrong, particularly abroad, the Christmas spirit will prevail in the United States. Of course the parcel post of the department will handle a large quantity of packages that heretofore went by express.

If They Had Only Known.

More gold has been taken out of Alaska this year than ever before. If Russia had known how much gold her American possession contained she would never have sold it to the United States for seven million and some hundred thousand dollars. If the English had known of Alaska and her riches her diplomats and navigators would have found some means of obtaining possession. If the Spaniards, who chased the will-o'-the-wisp on both sides of the American continent, had known that gold existed in that far northern country they might have made an effort to have settled and claimed it. Fortunately for the United States the riches of Alaska were unknown until they were gradually developed by our own pioneers.

Time Clock Nest On Hen's Work

Jersey Eggologist Has Great Scheme to Show When "Improving by Age" Begins.

The great egg-eating public will always be more or less interested in affairs appertaining to and touching on hens and their product. Eggologists all over the country are taking advantage of this fact, now that eggs are apt to attain famine prices owing to the recalcitrant conduct of hens of laying age.

When these learned brethren attempt to assail our intelligence with the pronouncement that the time is approaching when we will classify eggs with friendship, wine and cheese, however, we begin to sit up and gasp. Prima facie, we are prone to argue eggs are not improved by age, though we will admit tentatively that eggs are strengthened by age.

Must Be Stored Fresh.

If you will permit us to qualify the premise, retort the eggologists, we will persist that an old egg, if properly aged, is a perfectly good egg. In other words, we can prove scientifically that a three-year-old egg is often better than a ten-day-old egg.

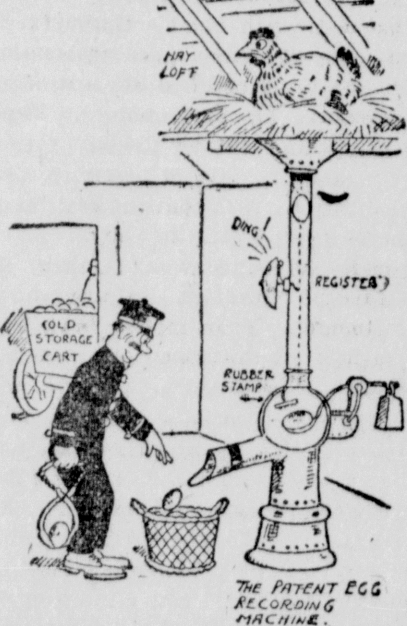

When an egg is born, run on the eggologists, it is a sweet and toothsome thing to the human palate. When an egg is put in cold storage it enters into a condition of inertia. It goes neither backward nor forward. It maintains its standard of quality. Be it in storage for one, two or three years, an egg that is put in fresh comes out fresh.

Use Dating Stamp.

"Presto!" cry the eggologists. "We have solved the whole blamed egg problem. Our researches have taught us that it is now only necessary to assure the public that our cold storage eggs have gone into storage fresh. We can do that by a system of stamping."

George Henry Smith, the Cedar Grove eggologist, suggests a very simple stamp, to wit:

Born April 1.
Taken out —
Stored April 1.
The "taken out" line may be left blank, as who can tell when an egg will come out of storage? That all depends on the state of the market. It may come out ten years hence. All we require is an assurance that it has not been out too long, for though a new-born egg has not decreased in quality while in storage, the moment it gets out of storage it becomes again a creature amenable in temporal vicissitudes.

Some skeptic may scream out, "How in thunder are you going to get the egg fanciers to clock an egg honestly?"

Simple, lad, simple. Just as easy as hitting the ground after falling off a couple of Singer Buildings.

Let Egg Stamp Itself.

Build a patent egg-stamping nest. When the egg comes into the world it falls gently through a cushioned pipe, drops lightly as a feather on a time stamp and passes out through another cushioned slot into a basket, at the same time ringing a bell, which summons a collector. It is then only up to the collector to get that egg into immediate storage unless it is required for immediate consumption.

In fact it would be no great task to equip a composite nest with this device. Forty hens could be laying eggs from time to time, each egg reaching its designated cushioned pipe and descending gently to the time clock.

The vorliest dub of an inventor, say the eggologists, can turn out one of these contrivances. Then let each State Legislature pass a law making it a misdemeanor, or felony if you will, for any egg raiser not to have his henery equipped with a time-stamping device.

THE NEWEST SEA FOOD

California Abalones Said to Be More Delicate Than Oysters.

The abalone of the California coast, famous for its brilliant shell, is the latest addition to the list of sea foods. According to the Wide World Magazine, the abalone is a clean feeder, so that its flesh is superior in soundness and wholesomeness to that of the oysters and other marine creatures which live near shore in water contaminated by many impurities.

The weight of a fairly large fresh abalone is two pounds, of which all but half a pound is good meat, the shell being very light. The meat is nutritious, being highly albuminous, like that of clams, oysters, lobsters and shell fish generally. Albumen is one of the chief elements of nutrition in milk, cheese, eggs, etc.

The flesh as it comes from the shell is too tough to be eaten, whether uncooked, boiled, stewed or fried. The toughness used to be partly eliminated by pounding and hammering it, but this did not render the meat really tender. No matter how long it may be boiled the fish remains hard.

After many experiments a San Franciscan named J. W. Gayetty discovered that if the abalone is killed by electricity its flesh is rendered soft and succulent like that of an oyster. A company uses his method at an abalone canning factory in San Luis Obispo county.

This company owns several roomy, seaworthy boats, each carrying two Japanese divers, one of whom goes down for three or four hours and is then relieved by the other. The diver tears the abalones, with moss and seaweed attached to them, from the rocks and sends up the shells as rapidly as possible. Under ordinary conditions he can send up a ton of abalones in an hour. As soon as the boat comes to shore the abalones, if not wanted at once in the cannery, are thrown into a tank of salt water, the bottom of which is strewn with rocks, so as to resemble the floor of the ocean, and are kept there till they are wanted.

The flesh and juice of the abalone are treated together and the product acquires a flavor more delicate than that of the oyster. This abalone food may be stewed or fried, while the juice makes a good broth, soup or appetizer. It is relished by invalids. The leading hotels of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland and other California cities have "abalone chowder" on their bills of fare, and there are many delicious ways of cooking the prepared flesh.

When Her Turn Came.

The Journal had taken on a "woman editor," whose duty was to look after the "Woman's Page." Space being scarce in the "local room," a desk was given her in the managing editor's room, directly adjoining. For a week or two no fault was found with her work, but one morning the managing editor said to her:

"Miss Penfield, your style of writing is a little too terse and epigrammatic for the needs of your department. You must study expansion."

"Very well, Mr. Ringgold," she answered. "I will try."

Thereafter her work appeared to give entire satisfaction, for there was no further criticism. About six months later, however, the managing editor, after a morning spent in working at his desk, suddenly wheeled in his chair and said:

"Miss Penfield, I want a wife. I want you. Will you marry me?" "Mr. Ringgold," she responded, with a mocking smile, "that is rather terse and epigrammatic. Don't you think you ought to study expansion a little?"

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Columbia

The management claim that if every one only knew the many good points of "The Prisoner" to be shown tonight only, a packed house would be on deck to see it. The Kalem company in making this picture have used nearly all of their star actors and actresses and thrown open their entire studio that the best results might be obtained. A splendid show is absolutely assured. As a special Sunday attraction "Bootsie's Baby" will be the headliner. According to the leading critics of the moving picture magazines this particular story is said to be the strongest two reel feature the Edison company ever presented. A special musical program of entirely new music never before heard in Brainerd.

"Mysterious Mystery" tonight. The play opens with Florence Lawrence sitting with two kiddies on either side of her, with no one recognizing her, watching the play as it developed. However, as she entered the theatre she was observed by a strange man wearing an officers badge. He is shown as he phones for help.

A little later as the play progresses an auto arrives with another man. The stranger who first observed her approaches and informs her that friends wish to speak with her outside. She consents and as she approaches the auto a rug is thrown over her head. Miss Lawrence finds herself in an asylum. The excitement is clean and worthy of your admittance.

Also "A Girl and the Smuggler," a Victor drama; "A Modern Melodrama" for Sunday.

What would you do if a suitor for your hand, whom you did not love, introduced you to a foreign nobleman who finally proved to be an impostor, after you had married him? How would you feel if you had been inveigled into a plot of this kind and then discovered that you really loved the man? What would be your feelings if your former pseudo loved attempted to ruin your father in order to make the plot more deadly?

Conduct Affairs of Eighteen Nations During the War.

BURDEN ON AMBASSADORS.

Every Official Has Large Share of Public Business at This Time, and Bryan Is Fortunate in Having a Trained Corps—Purchase of Alaska Was Very Good Business For Uncle Sam.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—One important reason why the United States should maintain strict neutrality is on account of its relations with many other nations now involved in war. The United States is transacting the business of eighteen different countries involved in one way or another in the present great world struggle. Our embassies and legations abroad are transacting business for the nations engaged in war.

Not only has this placed a heavy burden upon the men who represent the United States abroad and their assistants, but it has largely increased the work of the state department. Every official in the state department has more than his share of government business at the present time. It is fortunate that there is a corps of trained men in the state department who are able to transact so much of this business. Secretary Bryan is fortunate in having so many valuable assistants who are able to carry on this increased foreign business, even if the secretary is at times compelled to be absent.

An Annual Struggle.

Not only does the clash between the football teams of the military and naval academies mean an annual struggle for supremacy on the football field, but it is also an annual struggle for tickets. ## ARRANGING EXHIBITS

J. M. Curran of St. Paul, in City,
Classifying Mid-Winter Seed
Fair Exhibit

J. M. Curran, of St. Paul, of the main experiment station from the agricultural farm of the University of Minnesota, has arrived in the city and is arranging the exhibits of grains, grasses, seeds, etc., to be shown at the time of the Mid-Winter Seed fair in Brainerd, held simultaneously with the Northern Minnesota Development association, the Ladies Auxiliary and the Minnesota Crop Improvement association conventions. Mr. Curran, who attended the Mid-Winter Seed Fair and Improvement association convention in Mankato last year, is assured that the Brainerd convention will exceed the Mankato one.

W. R. Macdonald, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association, was also in Brainerd and completing final arrangements. He said that it is expected to have C. M. King, a former president of the association, also speak at the meeting. G. G. Hartley, of Duluth, is also expected to speak on development work in northern Minnesota. Another speaker, expected in addition to the regular program, will be Judge Jas. T. Hale, of Deerwood, newly appointed member of the State Tax Commission.

Two speakers whom all farmers should make it a point to hear, said Mr. Macdonald, are J. C. McDowell, of Washington, D. C., agriculturist of the department of agriculture and E. B. Smith, of Washington, of the public roads department, department of agriculture.

LIFE'S BATTLE.

I am sorry for the man, for the woman, who does not know that life is a battle, who does not know what price of toil and sacrifice is paid for everything that we use or enjoy. Not to know this, not to be bearing one's share of the world's task, is a kind of cowardice and treachery.—Theodore C. Williams.

Ownership in the above schedule are not vouched for, being added by correspondent. For all ownerships the official records should be consulted. The iron ore tonnages of the range were, during the year, measured and calculated by the mining engineer to the tax commission and the grade and class being determined, the tax commission made for the first time, an ad valorem assessment there of 50 per cent of it present indicated full value.

J. C. Campbell, of Cloquet, visited Ironton and his property in section 3, township 46, range 29 this week. Otto Wendlandt and Walter Gousky, of Duluth, were also on the range. The Carlson Exploration Co. has recently moved two drills on section 20, township 46, range 2. This property adjoins the townsite of Orelani on the east. In anticipation of the intended visit of D. Walter Harvey Weed to the property of the Cuyuna-Sultana Iron Co. the latter part of this week, that company has been bending every effort to have their No. 2 shaft ledged and into the ore on its arrival, in order that he may have the best opportunity possible of making his examination of the property thorough and comprehensive. During the week the work of sinking this shaft has gone on with renewed vigor, the materials encountered being mud, boulders and sand. Owing to the proximity of the quicksand, the pump has been kept going a considerable part of the time to eliminate water conditions at the bottom. The drill at this point encountered the ledge at 54 feet and therefore, there remains but a little way to go before the ore will be reached. The shaft depth at present is about 50 feet. The sinking of the shaft has given those interested many anxious moments. Every known strategy was employed to overcome the quicksands. The management is to be congratulated on their success. My Lyons, one of the directors, visited the property with other stockholders the first of the week and was highly pleased with what he saw. All concerned in the enterprise are now confidently awaiting the results of Dr. Weed's investigation, inasmuch as upon his report will depend largely the course which will be followed in working the mine. Work at the Brainerd-Cuyuna Mining Co. shaft in the city of Brainerd is being well carried on and the shaft, a timber drop shaft, has now attained about 80 feet depth. Captain Andrew Johnson is making good progress and every foot made is retained. The timber drop shaft is of the same pattern as the one successfully sunk in Woodrow at the Wilcox mine of the Canadian-Cuyuna Ore Co., and D. C. Peacock, who had charge of the Wilcox shaft, is also superintending the sinking of the Brainerd-Cuyuna shaft. There is now only about 12 feet more to make to reach ledge. At that point drifting will be started and the ore body tapped in a short time. The mine is in a good position to ship. All the necessary machinery is on the ground, buildings are erected and sinking is proceeding at a steady pace. The mine is within a few hundred feet of the Northern Pacific tracks. Recent visitors at the mine were Charles C. Jones and Edmond Ingalls of Duluth. Stockholders in general and Brainerd ones in particular, of whom many reside within a few blocks of the shaft, are pleased with the showing made by Capt. Johnson and Mr. Peacock.

At the Barrows Mining Co. property in section 16 drilling is continuing southwest of the Northern Pacific depot. Hole No. 6-A, which is an angle hole, is down 215 feet. Ore in this hole was struck at 110 feet. The casing is left in the hole as it is possible that more drilling will be done in the same. The drill is now being moved 145 feet northwest where hole No. 7-A will be started. This will be a vertical hole. The Barrows Iron Co. controls 120 acres of land and the ore is said to extend across all three forty running northeast and southwest. It is the intention of the company, it is reported, to start sinking a concrete shaft at an early date.

The Duluth Diamond Drill Co. are now drilling on the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 15 right south and east of Barrows. This is on the Brainerd Mining Co. property. It is reported that good ore has been found. The Barrows-Mississippi Iron company are still drilling in section 9 and they are now in the eighth hole. The Barrows Iron Co. held a meeting in Hibbing and at this meeting it was voted to pay off a mortgage on their property in section 10, township 43, range 32. Another meeting will be held shortly after the first of the year when there will be taken up the question of more drilling on the property. The company owns the fee to the northwest quarter of section 10. The Longyear company is drilling the eighth hole at the Crow Wing county poor farm. Five out of seven holes drilled showed up ore. To the city of Brainerd has now been devised two tracts in Northeast Brainerd and some acres in Southeast Brainerd, bequests in the will of the late George W. Holland. The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs and Cuyuna-Duluth mines are expected to soon resume work. Pumpage repairs are being made. A 1,600 gallon electric pump is being installed in the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs.

Recent heavy orders for steel products placed in the United States are expected to give a better tone to the ore market and its effect, it is hoped, will be felt on the Minnesota ranges.

At Riverton, at the Rowe mine pit, a steam shovel is working on overburden and one hydraulic unit is working. The recent warm spell has facilitated work in the hydraulic line. Fifty men are at work. The $3,000,000 assessment as placed by the Crow Wing county board of review was considerably lowered by the state tax commission who placed the assessed value of the mine at about $300,000. A higher valuation was placed on the Wilcox mine in section 13, township 45, range 30, than that originally given by the county board of review.

There is a more hopeful feeling prevalent on the range and the growing scarcity of manganese ore will do much to stimulate the working of properties known to be rich in manganese ore.

Getting out stockpiles are the Armour No. 2 and the Kennedy mines of the Rogers, Brown Ore Co. Shippers in 1915 will include the Armour No. 2, Kennedy, Cuyuna-Mille Lacs, Cuyuna-Duluth, Pennington pit, Rowe pit, Thompson pit, Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore Co. pit, Hill Crest pit, the Adams, Graft, Duluth-Brainerd, Cuyuna-Sultana, Iron Mountain, Brainerd-Cuyuna, Wilcox, and probably the Armour No. 1 and the Mecham mines. Many state properties are being developed, and State Auditor Iverson is confident several will be on the shipping list next season. With all this talk of depression, etc., the Cuyuna iron range this year produced in round numbers 1,000,000 tons, and the prospects for next season are brighter still.

The constant growth of agriculture keeps pace with mining and makes the Cuyuna iron range unique among the iron ranges of the world, insofar that various industries flourish and that the soil, above and below, is being utilized, making the range a perfect hive of industry.

The Wilcox mine has drifted 115 feet on the 200 foot level and they are now about 50 feet from the ore. Water to the extent of 200 gallons a minute is being pumped. W. M. Myhall, of Saint Ste Marie, is the new accountant at the mine.

The Iron Trade Review, of Cleveland, Ohio, date of November 26 says that "heavy buying of pig iron and a fair increase in business in finished materials have been the leading features of the very encouraging improvement of the past few days. As is usual, when a period of recovery is inaugurated after a profound depression, sales are being made at very low prices, but pig iron quotations have been advanced at Buffalo and the tone of the market in that center is distinctly firmer."

The American Radiator Co. has purchased 100,000 to 125,000 tons of pig iron for its various plants. A large part of this tonnage will come from Buffalo, at about $12 per ton, and it is estimated that sales in the Buffalo district during the past two weeks have been nearly 200,000 tons.

An order for 300 box cars with the Haskell & Barker Car Co. The Boston Elevated is inquiring for 100 steel coaches. The New York Central railroad has placed all of the 250,000 tons of steel rails, for which is has been inquiring, with the Lackawanna Steel Co.

Companies in this country which have booked large orders for shrapnel and other materials for belligerent powers in Europe are freely placing orders for machine tools. The Bethlehem Steel Co. has placed orders for about $200,000 worth of machine tools and will close shortly for even a larger number."

JANITOR 33 YEARS

Robert P. Nelson Resigns After Long Service in First National Bank Block

Janitor of the same building 33 years, Robert P. Nelson, familiarly called Pete, handed in his resignation to George D. LaBar, president of the First National bank, which building he had swept and kept clean over a quarter of a century.

Pete helped build the very building in which he had worked so long. Quiet, saving and industrious he has amassed a competence and owns valuable real estate in the city. As regular as a clock he was at work at four o'clock in the morning and half a dozen lodge rooms and office buildings felt the renovating influence of his broom and mop. The day Dr. James L. Camp, a life long friend of Pete, died, the janitor could not bear to pass through the rooms which bore so many memories of old associations.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES

Rev. Elof Carlson and Wife Pleasantly Remembered by the Congregation

Services were held Thursday afternoon at the Swedish Lutheran church: Solos by Miss Agnes Sundine, Rudolph Lindberg and G. S. Swanson. The choir also sang.

Rev. Elof Carlson spoke of the progress of the church from its beginning up to the present time. He expressed the hope that it would not be long before they would be able to finish the main floor of the church. The services are now held in the basement of the church. Several of the members spoke also.

The congregation then presented the pastor with a purse as a remembrance of the third anniversary of his coming to Brainerd, and as a testimony of his good work in building up the congregation. Mrs. Carlson was presented with a silver set in honor of her birthday.

A luncheon was served by the ladies of the church.

THOUSANDS AT BENSON

West Central Development Association Meeting there to be Over-shadowed by Brainerd

3 CONVENTIONS HERE DEC. 1

Brainerd Should Duplicate the Spirit of Benton Merchants in Decorating the Town

"If the two conventions which open here next Tuesday morning attract as large an attendance as the West Central Development Association meeting, Brainerd's hospitality and accommodations will be taxed to the limit," said Secretary Hansing of the Chamber of Commerce on his return from Benson this morning where he spent all of yesterday looking over the exhibits and getting ideas which might be used to advantage in the arrangements here for next week's convention. "Benson played host to more than 5,000 people yesterday who arrived on special trains from different sections of the 17 counties, members of the association."

"A large arch 50 feet high which spanned one of the main streets near the depot was built of ears of different colored corn and trimmed with alfalfa. The arch was six feet in diameter and at night was illuminated by colored lights. It was said to cost $800. Displayed in large letters at the top were the words 'Welcome to Benson, Let's Grow.' The latter phrase is used by the association as their slogan. In a large tent erected on a lot near the business district of the town was displayed thousands of ears of corn of every known variety. The erection of the tent was necessitated from the lack of hall room in town and owing to the warm weather was very adaptable. In another tent nearby was held the business sessions and lectures while musical programs were rendered at intermissions. A prize of $100 was offered by the association for the best band and as a consequence Glenwood, Morris and the Chippewa Valley mounted band paraded the streets indulging in choice selections of modern music.

"Many shop windows in Benson were decorated with a cleverness that compelled admiration. Some of them had never received so much painstaking before. A barber adorned his shop with a 'homestead' made of kernels of corn, while several mercantile houses, jewelers and real estate offices had exhibits of corn and alfalfa arranged in kladoscopic designs. "One thing which was sadly neglected was the presence of a reception committee and though everyone was bedecked with a button, ribbon or other form of badge none of the citizens had been equipped with credentials to act as a reception committee.

"Brainerd would do well to duplicate the spirit shown by Benson merchants in decorating their buildings. Flags, bunting and other materials were used in trimming up their store fronts while windows were tastily trimmed with welcome signs very much in prominence.

"Today will be Twin City Day at Benson and it is anticipated a big crowd will be in attendance which will eclipse all previous records."

SHOT IN HEAD

Boy Shooting at Rabbit Strikes Companion in Head and Kills the Rabbit

William Bichler, getting in line of his boy friend's fire, found his head to be the target of a 22 rifle when David Sutherland fired. The bullet was deflected and incidentally struck the rabbit too and killed the latter. Pichler is in a hospital with a long gash in the head where the bullet traveled and will soon recover.

Brainerd Making Elaborate Arrangements to Entertain Visitors From all Parts of the State

WILL OFFER $2,500 IN PRIZES

A $225 Silo Among Prizes—Farmers are Requested to Bring Samples

Brainerd is making elaborate arrangements to entertain visitors from all parts of the state at the two conventions on Dec. 1, 2, 3, and 4. The committees having in charge the work have left no stone unturned nor have they overlooked any detail which might go to make the visit of a stranger one long to be remembered. The premium lists which have been sent broadcast over the state and county show a total of nearly $2,500 in premiums which are offered in numerous classifications for exhibits from all parts of the state. The largest single premium is that of a $225 silo which is offered for the best 10 ears of corn, any Dent variety. The silo was donated by the Puffer-Hubbard Co., Minneapolis, through the efforts of W. W. Michael, the local agent.

Farmers of Crow Wing county are much favored in the premium list, there being a total of $300 which can only be competed for by residents of the county. Farmers should not overlook the opportunity which is here offered to learn what other sections of the state are doing in the way of improving their seeds and crops. The program, a copy of which is here with printed, offers opportunities for hearing some of the best known speakers in the state and country on subjects of paramount importance. All of the sessions are open to the visitors while the addresses to be delivered are free to the public.

Two large halls on the third floor of the Iron Exchange building are to be occupied by the exhibits of forage crops and farmers are requested to send in samples with their name and address attached and to arrange to attend the sessions on one or all of the days of the convention.

A GOOD SHOW

"His Highness, the Bey," Presented by Arthur Clamage and Company, Draws Large House

"For heaven's sake, Anne, did you miss the show in the Park theatre last night?" asked Marie, of her friend.

"I'm sorry I did," said Anne. And so were some other few people who like Anne did not see Arthur Clamage do his stunts and sing his songs in "His Highness, the Bey."

His Highness captivated the audience. His familiar, "Oh for Heaven's Sakes" punctuated the funny situations and there were many of them.

A chorus, sparkling with pretty women and dressed gorgeously, danced as well as any chorus of any of the highest priced shows making Brainerd. The scenery and costumes were of a high order. Thomas Hayes, Frank Carey, Arthur Clamage and Walter Lehman in quartet singing were superb. Grace Fields and Mabel Faleer are very pretty and sing well. One of the funny incidents occurred when Clamage in a popular song of an interminable number of verses, trotted out various members of the chorus and each one did her little stunt. Tonight "The Pink Widow," tomorrow night "The Girl From Luxemburg." And make a note of this—buy your tickets early or you may have to stand.

EAGLES ANNUAL CELEBRATION

Twelfth Anniversary Draws an Attendance of Over 500 Members and Their Families

ON THANKSGIVING EVE., NOV. 25

Hon. H. P. Dunn Toastmaster, the Fine Program, Turkey Banquet, Dancing Closing Entertainment

The twelfth anniversary of Brainerd Aerie No. 287, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, was celebrated in regulation splendid on Thanksgiving eve, November 25, at the Citizens State bank hall, 500 Eagles and their families being present.

Hon. H. P. Dunn was the toastmaster at the program. The first number was a selection by the F. O. E. orchestra.

In introducing the next number, Mr. Dunn said: "The story is told of a man asking his physician, 'Do you think buttermilk will prolong life?' And the physician replied, 'I have no doubt but to a person who drinks buttermilk every day that life would seem longer.' We have with us tonight Mr. Chris Elvig, who says the way to enjoy life is to hear good music. He will give us a cornet solo.

Mrs. Ed E. Clamage gave a recitation. Al Mraz sang a song and he was given this introduction by Mr. Dunn: "The story is told of Brother Al Mraz that while standing in Mr. Graham's music store a few days ago a young lady came in and thinking Mr. Mraz was working there, stepped up to him and said: 'Have you Kissed Me in the Moonlight?' Mr. Mraz looked at her a moment and said: 'Not yet.'

George W. Weaver was the next speaker and Mr. Dunn said: "And now, my friends, it is my privilege to call on that Eagle who has done so much for the order, Past State President George Weaver."

Mr. Weaver referred to the good done in Brainerd by the Eagles. The local aerie had 80 charter members. Today it has approximately 390 members in good standing. Its assets included city bonds of $2,500 and certificates of deposit of $1,500. The date of birth of the local lodge was November 25, 1902.

The following were benefits paid out from December 1, 1902 to November 10, 1914: sick benefits $6,201, funeral benefits $1,450, doctor bills $9,998 and special relief of $445 of which some was donated to the Associated Charities and other bodies and individuals. This made a grand total of benefits paid in twelve years of $18,094.

Extracts taken from the grand secretary's report of total benefits paid out to members and their families of the 2,016 aeries located throughout the United States and Alaska, for the six months ending July 1, 1914, were: sick benefit $392,733.91, funeral benefit $115,025.78, physicians' salaries $243,250.67. This was not distributed in the spirit of charity, but in justice, said Mr. Weaver.

Miss Eliza Armstrong sang a soprano solo. Wm. Rodenkirchen played a cello solo.

In introducing Dr. E. F. Jamison, Mr. Dunn said: "It is said a fond mother went to Dr. Jamison and said: 'Doctor, my daughter sits and gazes into the mirror for hours at a time and I cannot get her to take exercise. What would you prescribe for her?' The doctor answered: 'Another mirror at the other end of the room.' Dr. Jamison played a piano solo.

Mr. Alderman gave a baritone solo. Mr. Dunn gave him this mention in his introductory speech: "We have with us tonight a man who always has a word of praise to offer for the people and the town in which he lives and it is said that a few days ago a land seeker from Iowa, in conversation with Mr. Alderman, said to him: 'Do things grow well in this soil?' Mr. Alderman looked at him and said: 'Grow well! I should say it does,' and pointing to Ahrea's bill, said: 'Do you see that hill over there?'"

The stranger answered, 'Yes.' "Well," said Mr. Alderman, "when I came here that was a hole in the ground."

The E. O. E. quartet including S. F. Alderman, Al Mraz, Wm. Vernon and John Bye sang a selection. Mrs. Rifenrath and Mrs. Cook played a piano duet. A selection by the F. O. E. orchestra closed the program.

A splendid turkey dinner was served, Tom Mansuras being the caterer. To prevent confusion tickets of various shades were handed out. The holders of the white pasteboards ate first, filling the four tables in the banquet room. Then followed the other shades.

The Eagle orchestra played for the dance following. Many Eagle visitors were present from Pillager and other points. It was an evening of

With Florence Lawrence and Matt Moore

Here is a play within a play—one of the queerest mystery dramas you have seen in a long time. It has the rare quality of keeping the spectator in the air, guessing as to what will happen next and what the final outcome will be, until the very last scene. It is a play difficult to do justice in mere words—it must be seen to be appreciated. The story was especially written for Miss Lawrence and features her as Miss Lawrence is in real life—with an adventure, odd and thrilling, thrown in.

ON THANKSGIVING EVE., NOV. 25

Hon. H. P. Dunn Toastmaster, the Fine Program, Turkey Banquet, Dancing Closing Entertainment

The twelfth anniversary of Brainerd Aerie No. 287, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, was celebrated in regulation splendid on Thanksgiving eve, November 25, at the Citizens State bank hall, 500 Eagles and their families being present.

Hon. H. P. Dunn was the toastmaster at the program. The first number was a selection by the F. O. E. orchestra.

In introducing the next number, Mr. Dunn said: "The story is told of a man asking his physician, 'Do you think buttermilk will prolong life?' And the physician replied, 'I have no doubt but to a person who drinks buttermilk every day that life would seem longer.' We have with us tonight Mr. Chris Elvig, who says the way to enjoy life is to hear good music. He will give us a cornet solo.

Mrs. Ed E. Claringave a recitation. Al Mraz sang a song and he was given this introduction by Mr. Dunn: "The story is told of Brother Al Mraz that while standing in Mr. Graham's music store a few days ago a young lady came in and thinking Mr. Mraz was working there, stepped up to him and said: 'Have you Kissed Me in the Moonlight?' Mr. Mraz looked at her a moment and said: 'Not yet.'

George W. Weaver was the next speaker and Mr. Dunn said: "And now, my friends, it is my privilege to call on that Eagle who has done so much for the order, Past State President George Weaver."

Mr. Weaver referred to the good done in Brainerd by the Eagles. The local aerie had 80 charter members. Today it has approximately 390 members in good standing. Its assets included city bonds of $2,500 and certificates of deposit of $1,500. The date of birth of the local lodge was November 25, 1902.

The following were benefits paid out from December 1, 1902 to November 10, 1914: sick benefits $6,201, funeral benefits $1,450, doctor bills $9,998 and special relief of $445 of which some was donated to the Associated Charities and other bodies and individuals. This made a grand total of benefits paid in twelve years of $18,094.

Extracts taken from the grand secretary's report of total benefits paid out to members and their families of the 2,016 aeries located throughout the United States and Alaska, for the six months ending July 1, 1914, were: sick benefit $392,733.91, funeral benefit $115,025.78, physicians' salaries $243,250.67. This was not distributed in the spirit of charity, but in justice, said Mr. Weaver.

Miss Eliza Armstrong sang a soprano solo. Wm. Rodenkirchen played a cello solo.

In introducing Dr. E. F. Jamison, Mr. Dunn said: "It is said a fond mother went to Dr. Jamison and said: 'Doctor, my daughter sits and gazes into the mirror for hours at a time and I cannot get her to take exercise. What would you prescribe for her?' The doctor answered: 'Another mirror at the other end of the room.' Dr. Jamison played a piano solo.

Mr. Alderman gave a baritone solo. Mr. Dunn gave him this mention in his introductory speech: "We have with us tonight a man who always has a word of praise to offer for the people and the town in which he lives and it is said that a few days ago a land seeker from Iowa, in conversation with Mr. Alderman, said to him: 'Do things grow well in this soil?' Mr. Alderman looked at him and said, 'Grow well! I should say it does,' and pointing to 'Abraham's bill, said: 'Do you see that hill over there?'

The stranger answered, 'Yes. "Well," said Mr. Alderman, 'when I came here that was a hole in the ground.'

The F. O. E. quartet including S. F. Alderman, Al Mraz, Wm. Vernon and John Bye sang a selection. Mrs. Rifenrath and Mrs. Cook played a piano duet. A selection by the F. O. E. orchestra closed the program.

A splendid turkey dinner was served, Tom Mansuras being the caterer. To prevent confusion tickets of various shades were handed out. The holders of the white pasteboards ate first, filling the four tables in the banquet room. Then followed the other shades.

The Eagle orchestra played for the dance following. Many Eagle visitors were present from Pillager and other points. It was an evening of

Here is a play within a play—one of the queerest mystery dramas you have seen in a long time. It has the rare quality of keeping the spectator in the air, guessing as to what will happen next and what the final outcome will be, until the very last scene. It is a play difficult to do justice in mere words—it must be seen to be appreciated. The story was especially written for Miss Lawrence and features her as Miss Lawrence in real life—with an adventure, odd and thrilling, thrown in.

Half a dozen sentences exchanged with the chauffeur advised her that these were horsemen from the town of Mesa who had charged themselves with the duty of avenging the death of Hopi Jim Slade.

A sardonic chuckle from within Trine's gag goaded the girl into a sudden fury.

Exacting his utmost speed from the chauffeur, under penalty of her displeasure, she set herself to revive Alan.

With the aid of such stores of food and drink as the car carried, this was quickly enough accomplished.

Strangling with an overdose of brandy too little diluted with water, Alan sat up, grasped the conditions in a flash, and gained further information as he devoured sandwiches and emptied a canteen.

The mountain pass was now, he judged, a mile distant. The light on the hillside, according to the chauffeur, was that of a prospector who had camped there temporarily. There was nothing, then, to be feared from that quarter, but solely from the rear—where the horsemen, having picked up Marrophat and his companions, had instituted hot pursuit, and were now strung out in a long, straggling line, three horses carrying double the farthest—perhaps a mile and a half away—one with a single rider the nearest, well within three-quarters of a mile.

Nobly mounted, this last came on like the wind, gaining on the motor car with every stride; for his horse was trained to such going, whereas the car at best could only labor heavily in dust and sand.

None the less, it had won to a point within a quarter of a mile from the pass before the horseman got within what he esteemed the proper range, and opened fire.

He fired thrice. His first shot winged wide, his second by ill-chance ripped through a rear tire of the car, thus placing upon it an additional handicap, while his third sought the zenith as his hands flew up and he dropped from the saddle, drilled through the body by Alan's only shot.

A long-range pistol duel was in progress before the car had covered half the remaining distance to the pass.

By the time it entered this last, which proved to be a narrow ravine with towering sides of crumbly earth and shale and broken rock, the pursuit was not a hundred yards behind, while the firing was well-nigh continuous.

Two hundred feet above the trail two men were working with desperate haste at some mysterious business—though none noticed them.

Only the chauffeur was aware of a woman running down the hillside at an angle, to intercept the car several

"Straight Ahead, My Man!" She Said. Hundred yards from the mouth of the pass.

As it drew near the spot where she paused, waving both hands frantically, the head of the pursuing party swept into the mouth of the ravine.

At the same time the chauffeur noticed that the two men on the hillside were following the woman pell-mell, throwing themselves down the slope with gigantic leaps and bounds.

And then a great explosion rent the peaceful hush of night—that till then had been profaned by the pattering cracks of the revolver fusillade.

As the roar of dynamite subsided the entire side of the hill shifted and slid ponderously down, choking the ravine with debris to the depth of some thirty or forty feet, burying the leaders of the pursuit beyond hope of rescue.

Only a instant later the motor car jolted to a halt and Alan pulled himself together to find that Rose and Baracus were standing beside the door and jabbering joyful greetings, mixed with more or less incoherent explanations of the manner in which they had come to seek shelter for the night in the prospector's shack and, roused by the noise of firing and recognizing

Alan in the car by the aid of spy-glasses, had with the prospector's aid hit upon this scheme of shooting a landslide in between the pursuit and its devoted quarry.

SERVIANS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Wintry Weather Interferes With Austrian Operations.

London, Nov. 27.—Telegraphing from Saloniki, Greece, the Morning Post's correspondent says:

"The news from Serbia is optimistic. The Austrians are not following up their successes at Valjevo. This is due mainly to the appalling weather conditions. There has been a heavy snowfall between Nish and Uskub. At Kumanovo the snow is six feet deep.

"The wintry weather will aid the Servians, who occupy positions of great natural strength. The morale of the army is excellent. The public is determined to carry the war to the bitter end.

"Forty thousand new troops, counting young men from eighteen to nineteen years of age, have joined the army before Kraguevatz."

VISITORS MARVEL AT PANAMA CANAL

Big Artificial Lakes Supply Water For the Zone.

ONE SLIDE IS TROUBLESOME

Cave-ins at Culebra Likely to Continue Until Mountains on Either Side Are Removed—No Big Cities, and Villages of Laborers Are Now Deserted. Health Is Excellent.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—There are a lot of interesting facts connected with the Panama canal that are not generally known. An Englishman was visiting the canal zone not long ago and when he saw the great Gatun lake, which has been made into an immense reservoir to supply the canal with water and to curb the onslaught of heavy rains and freshets of that region, remarked to Colonel Goethals, the army engineer, "What a fortunate thing it was that you had this great lake here!" As that lake was the creation of Colonel Goethals his disgust can be appreciated.

Facts About the Lake.

Salt water is carried into that lake, although it is eighty-five feet above sea level. It comes in with boats from one lake to another. Salt water fish get into the lake through the locks, but they cannot live in the fresh water. Miraflores lake, which is only one lock high on the Pacific side, is too salt to furnish a water supply for the towns on the west coast.

The trees which were partially submerged by the big lake are dying off and disappearing. They fall into the bottom of the lake and seem to be lost in the mud. The floating islands which were so common when the lake was first flooded are sinking to the bottom or gathering on the banks.

Gatun lake is full of fish of all kinds. They are expected to destroy the spawn of the mosquitoes. Owing to the great size of the lake petroleum cannot be spread over the surface of the water. It was by the use of petroleum that the mosquitoes bearing yellow fever and malarial fever were destroyed.

There are no wild fowl on the lake or in the surrounding country. The water is said to be too deep to attract them, although there should be plenty of marsh land along its edges, but the inference is that the canal zone is not a wild fowl country.

Water Supply Sufficient.

The Chagres river, which was so long considered a menace to any kind of canal construction, is now no longer dangerous. It empties into Gatun lake, but this body of water is so large it makes only a slight impression, although the river furnishes the largest continuous supply of water for the canal.

No fear is felt about the water supply of the lake. The spillways are frequently opened to discharge the surplus. There is little seepage and no indication that the water will break through at any point.

Panama will not be attractive for tourists. They no longer seem to be going there. The number is few in comparison to a few years ago. The canal is no longer interesting. The big locks, the cuts and the lakes are full of water and there is little evidence of the great work which has been accomplished.

Real Canal at Culebra.

The only real idea of the canal and when it becomes impressive as such is when one passes through Culebra cut. That cut is like a canal cut through the earth. "And there is the awful feeling that the sides of those high mountains will slide down on you and shut you in before you can escape."

It is believed that there will be many slides at this point until the mountains are leveled down and the pressure upon the deep cut has been relieved.

Canal Machinery.

Before the war in Europe a large part of the canal construction machinery was being sold in different countries for about 60 per cent of its cost, but nothing is being done in that line now. Some machinery is sold for use in South America. It is not believed that much of the machinery is adaptable to the construction of the railroad in Alaska, although provision was made to use such machinery adaptable to the work. The engines cannot be used, as they are broad gauge, while the Alaska railroad will be standard gauge.

The many bustling, thriving towns that were once seen along the canal have disappeared. They have been deserted, because there is no further use for them. They were occupied by canal workers, who have gone.

Will Be No Great Cities.

It is not believed there will be any great cities in Panama on account of the canal. Commerce will be passing through the canal and will not be distributed from either end of the waterway; hence there will be no great commercial warehouses, save those for coal and others which supply ships in transit.

The region around the canal is not such as to create any great amount of trade. In fact, it is rather anticipated that the canal zone has seen its most lively days.

SAYS GERMANS FEAR INVASION OF ALLIES

Copenhagen Paper Tells of Extensive Precautions.

London, Nov. 26.—An invasion by the allies is feared by Germany, according to the Copenhagen Evening News, which reports that extensive preparations are being made to guard against such an eventuality.

The News says it has learned from witnesses that the Germans are strengthening old fortresses in the former Danish territory of Schleswig-Holstein, as well as a line of entrenchments called the Danneverk along the northern side of the Kiel canal.

It is thus hoped to protect the canal against attacks from the north, for it is on the shores of Schleswig, according to these reports, that an invasion is feared.

All the German islands in the North sea, it is said, are now closely guarded and strongly fortified positions are being erected on the shores of Holstein and along the western side of the river Elbe.

Altogether eighteen Victoria crosses, the most coveted of all British decorations for valor, have been awarded since the beginning of the war.

TRAMPS AVERT BAD WRECK

Discover Broken Rail and Build Bonfire to Halt Motor Car.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 26.—Two tramps averted a serious wreck of a Missouri and North Arkansas motor car a half mile from the scene of the wreck at Tipton Ford, Aug. 5, last, when nearly fifty persons were killed.

The tramps were walking from Neosho, Mo., to Joplin and discovered a broken rail.

They built a fire in the middle of the track and awaited developments. Half an hour later a well filled motor car, coming from Joplin, slowed down as the crew observed the fire signal.

New Orleans, Nov. 26.—Plans for organization of a $100,000,000 corporation, to be known as the Cotton Products company, were completed here by the executive committee of the Southern Cotton association.

The corporation, which will have as its chief object the stabilizing of cotton values, will begin business, according to the announcement, as soon as $1,000,000 of stock has been subscribed.

Turning the Mattress.

Mattresses are surely among the most ungainly things to handle. Before next turning day arrives sew two large loops of tape on each side, slip your fingers through the ones toward you, draw the mattress over, then turn it; no more broken finger nails or hurt knuckles, to say nothing of the saving of nerves and—yes—temper occasionally!—New York Sun.

Bessie and Her Thanksgiving Pies

LITTLE Bessie Gray looked up from her story book with a sigh, and as she looked up she caught the reflection of her face in a mirror over the table and sighed again.

"Oh, dear! If I were only slender and graceful and a grown up young lady or a princess and lived in a palace and had heaps of money and could carry bunches of flowers to sick people! But here I am, nothing but Bessie Gray—short, stout and homely, with a broad face and a wide mouth and not exactly poor, but then I have to work rather hard for a little girl, and as for the troubles of this world, somehow I don't feel so badly about them as I ought to, or else the people around here don't have any to speak of."

"Now's your chance," said a little squeaking voice. Where did it come from? There was nothing in sight but a heap of pumpkins on a board just outside the window and a little colored girl passing the garden fence, scantily clad and shivering in the cold November sunshine.

All that Bessie knew of her was that her name was Poppy, and she belonged to a family that were very shiftless, it appeared, from their unwillingness to work and their ignorant ways of doing the little they could do.

But it could not be this little girl who spoke. She was hurrying on without turning a glance toward the house, eager, no doubt, to reach her miserable shelter from the cold.

Bessie's curiosity was fully aroused. She went out and stood upon the doorstep. The colored child was still but the wind, and that hardly whispered through the leafless boughs of the pear trees. But there was the voice, close to her now. "Help me down," it said. And Bessie's mouth opened wider than ever as she saw the topmost pumpkin of the pile at her side moving itself without aid of hands. She took hold of its stem, and, although it was one of the heaviest of the lot, she scarcely felt its weight at all.

"Carry me in," said the voice again, pautingly.

Bessie did not believe her own ears until now. A pumpkin talking! That was more wonderful than Aesop's fables, truly. But why shouldn't it speak as well as the brambles and oak trees and brass kettles? So she turned the great thing over upon its side and rolled it, or, rather, let it roll itself, up the steps into the kitchen.

"Cook me," said the little, panting, squeaking voice again. "Cook me." Just then her mother came in. "Mother, may I make some pumpkin pies?" said Bessie.

"Well, I don't care," was the answer of the busy woman. "None of us seems to be so very fond of them, but you can make them if you'll only promise to get somebody to eat them."

But the pumpkin began to squeak impatiently. "Cut me up! Cut me up!" And Bessie obeyed without more ado. Determined to have her pies as nice as they could be made, she poured out her milk, stirred in spice and sweetening and made the crust light, wondering while she rolled it out who would eat the pies when they were done.

But the pumpkin told her as it boiled in the kettle—no longer with that low squeak, but with a deep, musical rumble, as if laughing with joy over its own fate: "Black Poppy's people; black Poppy's people." And why shouldn't a pumpkin rejoice in the sacrifice of its own life for a benevolent purpose?

And Bessie herself, when she carried the pies to Poppy's wretched home, having first set one aside in the cupboard that her mother might see that she could bake pies worth anybody's eating, looked almost beautiful with the excitement of doing a kindly deed. Her sun browned hands and stout arms were just fitted for the beautiful work they had been doing, and she had as much reason to be proud of them as any lady of her delicate fingers, for certainly those are the prettiest hands that do most willingly the work they were made for.

And black Poppy's people could not have received one of the graceful ministering spirits of the story books with more eloquent gratitude than they did the homely little girl and her heavy basket of pies. Indeed, to those half starved beings she was a vision of loveliness, a real angel of mercy!—New York Press.

CROKER TAKES INDIAN BRIDE

Former Tammany Chief Weds Girl of Twenty-three.

New York, Nov. 27.—Richard W. Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, was married to Miss Bula Benton Edmondson, a member of the Cherokee Indian tribe, who is fifty years his junior. He is seventy-three years old and she is twenty-three. The bride and groom are on their way to the Croker estate, near Palm Beach, Fla., for their honeymoon.

The wedding took place at the home of Nathan Straus, an old friend of Croker's. Many persons went to the St. Agatha's church under the impression they would be witnesses of the nuptials, only to be disappointed. However, Croker did not evade all the uninvited guests as seemed to be his purpose, for the street in front of the Straus home was crowded with men and women. Only about twenty-five guests were invited.

GROUNDS OFF CAPE HENRY

Battleship Michigan Is Said to Be in No Danger.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The battleship Michigan grounded off Cape Henry, but is uninjured and in no danger and probably will be floated at high tide.

The Michigan was bound in at the time with seven other warships.

The battleship Michigan is a sister ship to the South Carolina and was built at New York. She is of 16,000 tons displacement with a speed of 18½ knots, and is 450 feet long. She has a complement of 869 officers and men.

Half a dozen sentences exchanged with the chauffeur advised her that these were horsemen from the town of Mesa who had charged themselves with the duty of avenging the death of Hopi Jim Slade.

A sardonic chuckle from within Trine's gag goaded the girl into a sullen fury.

Exacting his utmost speed from the chauffeur, under penalty of her displeasure, she set herself to revive Alan.

With the aid of such stores of food and drink as the car carried, this was quickly enough accomplished.

Strangling with an overdose of brandy too little diluted with water, Alan sat up, grasped the conditions in a flash, and gained further information as he devoured sandwiches and emptied a canteen.

The mountain pass was now, he judged, a mile distant. The light on the hillside, according to the chauffeur, was that of a prospector who had camped there temporarily. There was nothing, then, to be feared from that quarter, but solely from the rear—where the horsemen, having picked up Marrophat and his companions, had instituted hot pursuit, and were now strung out in a long, straggling line, three horses carrying double the farthest—perhaps a mile and a half away—one with a single rider the nearest, well within three-quarters of a mile.

Nobly mounted, this last came on like the wind, gaining on the motor car with every stride; for his horse was trained to such going, whereas the car at best could only labor heavily in dust and sand.

None the less, it had won to a point within a quarter of a mile from the pass before the horseman got within what he esteemed the proper range, and opened fire.

He fired thrice. His first shot winged wide, his second by ill-chance ripped through a rear tire of the car, thus placing upon it an additional handicap, while his third sought the zenith as his hands flew up and he dropped from the saddle, drilled through the body by Alan's only shot.

A long-range pistol duel was in progress before the car had covered half the remaining distance to the pass.

By the time it entered this last, which proved to be a narrow ravine with towering side of crumbly earth and shale and broken rock, the pursuit was not a hundred yards behind, while the firing was well-nigh continuous.

Two hundred feet above the trail two men were working with desperate haste at some mysterious business—though none noticed them.

Only the chauffeur was aware of a woman running down the hillside at an angle, to intercept the car several

"Straight Ahead, My Man!" She Said, hundred yards from the mouth of the pass.

As it drew near the spot where she paused, waving both hands frantically, the head of the pursuing party swept into the mouth of the ravine.

At the same time the chauffeur noticed that the two men on the hillside were following the woman pell-mell, throwing themselves down the slope with gigantic leaps and bounds.

And then a great explosion rent the peaceful hush of night—that till then had been profaned by the pattering cracks of the revolver fusillade.

As the roar of dynamite subsided the entire side of the hill shifted and slid ponderously down, choking the ravine with debris to the depth of some thirty or forty feet, burying the leaders of the pursuit beyond hope of rescue.

Only a instant later the motor car jolted to a halt and Alan pulled himself together to find that Rose and Barcus were standing beside the door and jabbering joyful greetings, mixed with more or less incoherent explanations of the manner in which they had come to seek shelter for the night in the prospector's shack and, roused by the noise of firing and recognizing

Alan in the car by the aid of spy-glasses, had with the prospector's aid bit upon this scheme of shooting a landslide in between the pursuit and its devoted quarry.

SERVIANS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Wintry Weather Interferes With Austrian Operations.

London, Nov. 27.—Telegraphing from Saloniki, Greece, the Morning Post's correspondent says:

"The news from Serbia is optimistic. The Austrians are not following up their successes at Valjevo. This is due mainly to the appalling weather conditions. There has been a heavy snowfall between Nish and Uskub. At Kumanovo the snow is six feet deep.

"The wintry weather will aid the Servians, who occupy positions of great natural strength. The morale of the army is excellent. The public is determined to carry the war to the bitter end.

"Forty thousand new troops, counting young men from eighteen to nineteen years of age, have joined the army before Kraguyevatz."

VISITORS MARVEL AT PANAMA CANAL

Big Artificial Lakes Supply Water For the Zone.

ONE SLIDE IS TROUBLESOME

Cave-ins at Culebra Likely to Continue Until Mountains on Either Side Are Removed—No Big Cities, and Villages of Laborers Are Now Deserted. Health Is Excellent.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—There are a lot of interesting facts connected with the Panama canal that are not generally known. An Englishman was visiting the canal zone not long ago and when he saw the great Gatun lake, which has been made into an immense reservoir to supply the canal with water and to curb the onslaught of heavy rains and freshets of that region, remarked to Colonel Goethals, the army engineer, "What a fortunate thing it was that you had this great lake here!" As that lake was the creation of Colonel Goethals his disgust can be appreciated.

Facts About the Lake.

Salt water is carried into that lake, although it is eighty-five feet above sea level. It comes in with boats from one lake to another. Salt water fish get into the lake through the locks, but they cannot live in the fresh water. Miraflores lake, which is only one lock high on the Pacific side, is too salt to furnish a water supply for the towns on the west coast.

The trees which were partially submerged by the big lake are dying off and disappearing. They fall into the bottom of the lake and seem to be lost in the mud. The floating islands which were so common when the lake was first flooded are sinking to the bottom or gathering on the banks.

Gatun lake is full of fish of all kinds. They are expected to destroy the spawn of the mosquitoes. Owing to the great size of the lake petroleum cannot be spread over the surface of the water. It was by the use of petroleum that the mosquitoes bearing yellow fever and malarial fever were destroyed.

There are no wild fowl on the lake or in the surrounding country. The water is said to be too deep to attract them, although there should be plenty of marsh land along its edges, but the inference is that the canal zone is not a wild fowl country.

Water Supply Sufficient.

The Chagres river, which was so long considered a menace to any kind of canal construction, is now no longer dangerous. It empties into Gatun lake, but this body of water is so large it makes only a slight impression, although the river furnishes the largest continuous supply of water for the canal.

No fear is felt about the water supply of the lake. The spillways are frequently opened to discharge the surplus. There is little seepage and no indication that the water will break through at any point.

Panama will not be attractive for tourists. They no longer seem to be going there. The number is few in comparison to a few years ago. The canal is no longer interesting. The big locks, the cuts and the lakes are full of water and there is little evidence of the great work which has been accomplished.

Real Canal at Culebra.

The only real idea of the canal and when it becomes impressive as such is when one passes through Culebra cut. That cut is like a canal cut through the earth. "And there is the awful feeling that the sides of those high mountains will slide down on you and shut you in before you can escape."

It is believed that there will be many slides at this point until the mountains are leveled down and the pressure upon the deep cut has been relieved.

Canal Machinery.

Before the war in Europe a large part of the canal construction machinery was being sold in different countries for about 60 per cent of its cost, but nothing is being done in that line now. Some machinery is sold for use in South America. It is not believed that much of the machinery is adaptable to the construction of the railroad in Alaska, although provision was made to use such machinery adaptable to the work. The engines cannot be used, as they are broad gauge, while the Alaska railroad will be standard gauge.

The many bustling, thriving towns that were once seen along the canal have disappeared. They have been deserted, because there is no further use for them. They were occupied by canal workers, who have gone.

Will Be No Great Cities.

It is not believed there will be any great cities in Panama on account of the canal. Commerce will be passing through the canal and will not be distributed from either end of the waterway; hence there will be no great commercial warehouses, save those for coal and others which supply ships in transit.

The region around the canal is not such as to create any great amount of trade. In fact, it is rather anticipated that the canal zone has seen its most lively days.

SAYS GERMANS FEAR INVASION OF ALLIES

Copenhagen Paper Tells of Extensive Precautions.

London, Nov. 26.—An invasion by the allies is feared by Germany, according to the Copenhagen Evening News, which reports that extensive preparations are being made to guard against such an eventuality.

The News says it has learned from witnesses that the Germans are strengthening old fortresses in the former Danish territory of Schleswig-Holstein, as well as a line of entrenchments called the Danneberg along the northern side of the Kiel canal.

It is thus hoped to protect the canal against attacks from the north, for it is on the shores of Schleswig, according to these reports, that an invasion is feared.

All the German islands in the North sea, it is said, are now closely guarded and strongly fortified positions are being erected on the shores of Holstein and along the western side of the river Elbe.

VICTORIA CROSSES FOR CONSPICUOUS SERVICE.

London, Nov. 26.—Eight Victoria crosses have been awarded for conspicuous service in battles in France. Five of these were given to privates and three to officers. Three men won their decorations at the battle of Le Cateau, one at Mons and the others in later battles.

Altogether eighteen Victoria crosses, the most coveted of all British decorations for valor, have been awarded since the beginning of the war.

TRAMPS AVERT BAD WRECK

Discover Broken Rail and Build Bonfire to Halt Motor Car.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 26.—Two tramps averted a serious wreck of a Missouri and North Arkansas motor car a half mile from the scene of the wreck at Tipton Ford, Aug. 5, last, when nearly fifty persons were killed.

The tramps were walking from Neosho, Mo., to Joplin and discovered a broken rail.

They built a fire in the middle of the track and awaited developments. Half an hour later a well filled motor car, coming from Joplin, slowed down as the crew observed the fire signal.

TO MAINTAIN COTTON PRICES

Aim of $100,000,000 Corporation Organized in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Nov. 26.—Plans for organization of a $100,000,000 corporation, to be known as the Cotton Products company, were completed here by the executive committee of the Southern Cotton association.

The corporation, which will have as its chief object the stabilizing of cotton values, will begin business, according to the announcement, as soon as $1,000,000 of stock has been subscribed.

Turning the Mattress.

Mattresses are surely almost the most ungrainy things to handle. Before next turning day arrives sew two large loops of tape on each side, slip your fingers through the ones toward you, draw the mattress over, then turn it; no more broken finger nails or hurt knuckles, to say nothing of the saving of nerves and—yes—temper occasionally!—New York Sun.

Give me insight into today and you may have the antique and future worlds.—Emerson.

Bessie and Her Thanksgiving Pies

LITTLE Bessie Gray looked up from her story book with a sigh, and as she looked up she caught the reflection of her face in a mirror over the table and sighed again.

"Oh, dear! If I were only slender and graceful and a grown up young lady or a princess and lived in a palace and had heaps of money and could carry bunches of flowers to sick people! But here I am, nothing but Bessie Gray—short, stout and homely, with a broad face and a wide mouth and not exactly poor, but then I have to work rather hard for a little girl, and as for the troubles of this world, somehow I don't feel so badly about them as I ought to, or else the people around here don't have any to speak of."

"Now's your chance," said a little squeaking voice. Where did it come from? There was nothing in sight but a heap of pumpkins on a board just outside the window and a little colored girl passing the garden fence, scantily clad and shivering in the cold November sunshine. All that Bessie knew of her was that her name was Poppy, and she belonged to a family that were very shiftless, it appeared, from their unwillingness to work and their ignorant ways of doing the little they could do.

But it could not be this little girl who spoke. She was hurrying on without turning a glance toward the house, eager, no doubt, to reach her miserable shelter from the cold.

Bessie's curiosity was fully aroused. She went out and stood upon the doorstep. The colored child was out of sight, and everything was still but the wind, and that hardly whispered through the leafless boughs of the pear trees. But there was the voice, close to her now. "Help me down," it said. And Bessie's mouth opened wider than ever as she saw the topmost pumpkin of the pile at her side moving itself without aid of hands. She took hold of its stem, and, although it was one of the heaviest of the lot, she scarcely felt its weight at all.

"Carry me in," said the voice again, pantingly.

Bessie had not believed her own ears until now. A pumpkin talking! That was more wonderful than Aesop's fables, truly. But why shouldn't it speak as well as the brambles and oak trees and brass kettles? So she turned the great thing over upon its side and rolled it, or, rather, let it roll itself, up the steps into the kitchen.

"Cook me," said the little, panting, squeaking voice again. "Cook me."

Just then her mother came in. "Mother, may I make some pumpkin pies?" said Bessie.

"Well, I don't care," was the answer of the busy woman. "None of us seems

But the pumpkin began to squeak impatiently: "Cut me up! Cut me up!" And Bessie obeyed without more ado. Determined to have her pies as nice as they could be made, she poured out her milk, stirred in spice and sweetening and made the crust light, wondering while she rolled it out who would eat the pies when they were done.

But the pumpkin told her as it boiled in the kettle—no longer with that low squeak, but with a deep, musical rumble, as if laughing with joy over its own fate—"Black Poppy's people; black Poppy's people." And why shouldn't a pumpkin rejoice in the sacrifice of its own life for a benevolent purpose?

And Bessie herself, when she carried the pies to Poppy's wretched home, having first set one aside in the cupboard that her mother might see that she could bake pies worth anybody's eating, looked almost beautiful with the excitement of doing a kindly deed. Her sun browned hands and stout arms were just fitted for the beautiful work they had been doing, and she had as much reason to be proud of them as any lady of her delicate fingers, for certainly those are the prettiest hands that do most willingly the work they were made for.

And black Poppy's people could not have received one of the graceful ministering spirits of the story books with more eloquent gratitude than they did the homely little girl and her heavy basket of pies. Indeed, to those half-starved beings she was a vision of loveliness, a real angel of mercy!—New York Press.

CROKER TAKES INDIAN BRIDE

Former Tammany Chief Weds Girl of Twenty-three.

New York, Nov. 27.—Richard W. Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, was married to Miss Bula Benton Edmondson, a member of the Cherokee Indian tribe, who is fifty years his junior. He is seventy-three years old and she is twenty-three. The bride and groom are on their way to the Croker estate, near Palm Beach, Fla., for their honeymoon.

The wedding took place at the home of Nathan Straus, an old friend of Croker's. Many persons went to the St. Agatha's church under the impression they would be witnesses of the nuptials, only to be disappointed. However, Croker did not evade all the uninvited guests as seemed to be his purpose, for the street in front of the Straus home was crowded with men and women. Only about twenty-five guests were invited.
